SOCIO-CULTURAL TREATMENT OF LGBTQ IN INDIAN SOCIETY

Ms. Madhusree Roy & Dr. Madhusudan Karmakar

We as human beings have instilled the concept of femininity and masculinity in the unconscious, subconscious, and conscious mind. And so, the existence of the LGBTQ group in our society creates an emotional or mental conflict between reality and rooted concept within us. Therefore, this paper has highlighted the issue of LGBTQ's questionable existence in the Indian society. Mainly emphasis has been given on the attitudes and role of parents, family, society, media, and government towards third gender people and psychological emotional mental trauma of the class of third sex. How these group of people socio-culturally are treated or nourished and how are their socio-cultural conditions in the societal hierarchy, what are their rights, face of societal rejections and acceptances etc., that's all are discussed in the present topic "Socio-Cultural Treatment of LGBTQ in Indian Society".

Every life starts through a biological reproduction process. Where Male sex and female sex play vital role in this life process. We have discovered this mystery of the creation of life from our
